Gunboat Fog of War Each unit, has visibility into each province it can move to. Each home supply center under your control has visibility into each adjacent province.

I have been slow getting this zine out, I know. There are many reasons, most of them my fault. There is one reason, however, which I am going to ask YOU to help with. I have been very lax with my deadlines.

From now on, deadlines are going to be strictly enforced. There is no longer any NMR insurance offered.

It is your responsibility to see that orders are mailed early enough to reach my mailbox by the deadline. If you use the telephone, or e-mail, it is still your responsibility, deadlines are for my home, not for my work address or number. I will take responsibility for orders I might have misplaced.

Ralph of Batyville

nomenclature:

/NSO/ = No Such Order
 /NSU/ = No Such Unit

Soylent Green PRESS:

Batyville: Four PROPOSALS have been received: Concession to Turkey, AET, AEIT, and DIAS, but I do not know what the last one means. Votes next time. BE CAREFUL! A "no vote" = a "YES" vote, except for the one I do not understand.

Austria -> Russia: Interesting how things go. Now you truly are on our side because we don't want you to fall into his hands.

Austria -> Italy: Vote for the concession, its the honourable thing to do.

Austria -> Italy: You have seen many things coming. Did you see this one? I love tactics, but the result is already known at this juncture.

Austria -> All: I only proposed the Concession to Turkey. I did so again, let's get on the bandwagonguys.

England -> Russia: This is nothing personal, but at this point, I am simply reinforcing the stalemate. If Turkey attacks, I want you holding place. If I support and you don't cooperate, then he gets StP. This way you remain beleagured garrison.

England -> Turkey: Give it up! This is stupid. Nobody is going to win this. You're just making the rest of us keep submitting these orders. I will NEVER vote for a T win. Accept E-A-T and be happy.

England -> Austria: Please don't allow this to go on. It's your pal that's voting this thing down. Please persuade him to vote yes. Persuade him with negotiation, or spersuade him by taking his cities. I don't care how, but get him to end it. You're the only one that can do it.

Batyville: I think he has already realized. We will just have to wait for all players to realize that diplomacy can be played on many different levels.

Russia-World: I hope you remaining big boys are nice enough to allow a pleasant standby to at least survive yuntil you finally decide which proposal you want to accept. By the by, since various accusations have been flying, I have been voting FOR the proposals.

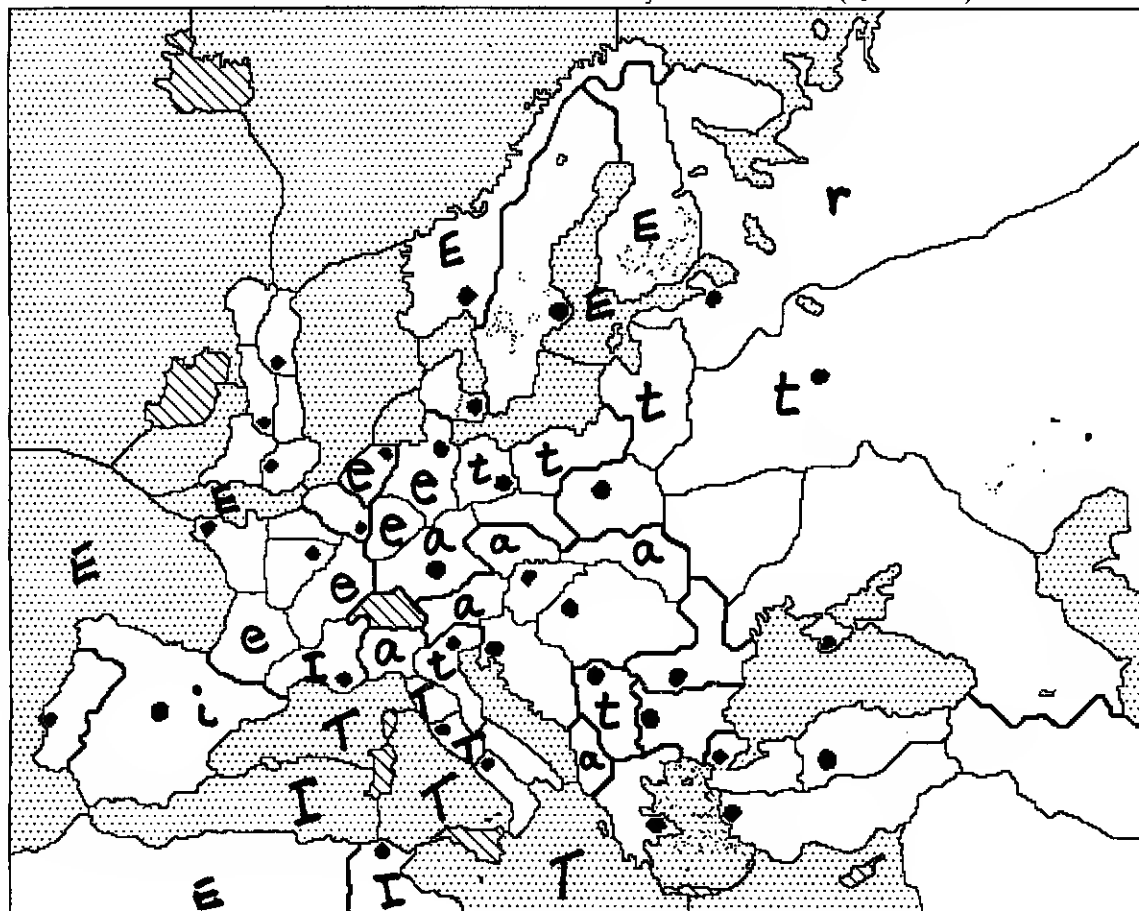

Turkey -> Russia: Hand in there good buddy. We're keeping the English on the peninsula where they can't do much damage.

Turkey -> Italy: I keep looking for a weak spot but am unable to find one. Any suggestions?

Turkey -> England: Do you sense a shift in the winds of fortune here?

Turkey -> Austria: Sorry to whitness your departure from Berlin, and to deprive you of two other centers of Austrian culture. Perhaps another time, another outcome.

Capital Radio PRESS:

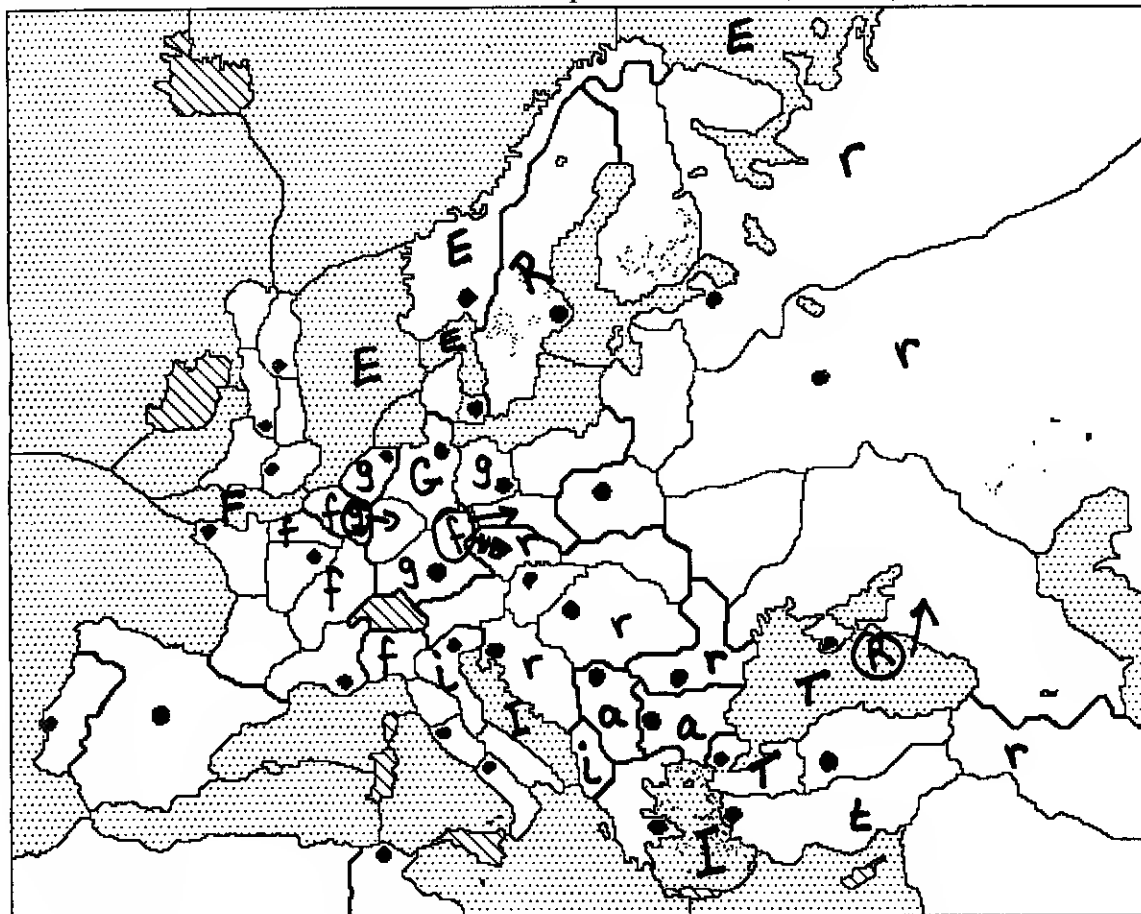

Batyville: Richard Weiss has a new Las Vegas address, and it is in the list

Someone requested my policy on splitting the Winter build season from the Spring moves. My policy is to grant the request. However, in a game this advanced, it usually is not necessary, and causes the game to be delayed for the other players. I am causing enough delay with my adjudication schedule being impacted by my life. However, I have every intention of successfully changing that.

Caverns PRESS:

Batyville: Note, another new COA for John Parr.

I have default spring orders for Germany and France

This page looks different from the others because I could not get it to print in the "normal" method. I found a way after a couple of days fiddling around.

France -> World: You guys ever hear of the "power of the press".
 France -> Batyville: Enjoy your press "editorial" comments.
 Batyville: Thanks, I try to add a few inanities if there is space, it makes it more fun for me.
 France -> England: Let the games begin.
 France -> Balkan Powers: The map looks like a California freeway during rush hour.
 Batyville: No it doesn't. Nothing moves then.
 France -> Turkey: I hereby crown you the "sphinx of Istanbul". Do you ever write?
 France -> Germany: Looking forward to meeting you for tea and crumpets at Whitehall.

Germany - All: Thanks for all the comments on my move to the NorthSea. Too bad it wasn't what I wanted to happen. Maybe I should be quiet and suck up all the glory and praise.

Batyville: I guess it depends on who you really want to a-FRONT.

Heavy Horses PRESS:

Batyville: Bob Robles has resigned. He has been replaced by Adrian Tymes, with the secret power, which I am not allowed to say, but I think everyone knows. Both Adrian and Bob submitted orders. I used Rob's although they were almost effectively the same.

Batyville: NOTE: The Scandinavian unit in Copenhagen is an army and was not allowed to move to the Baltic Sea last time.

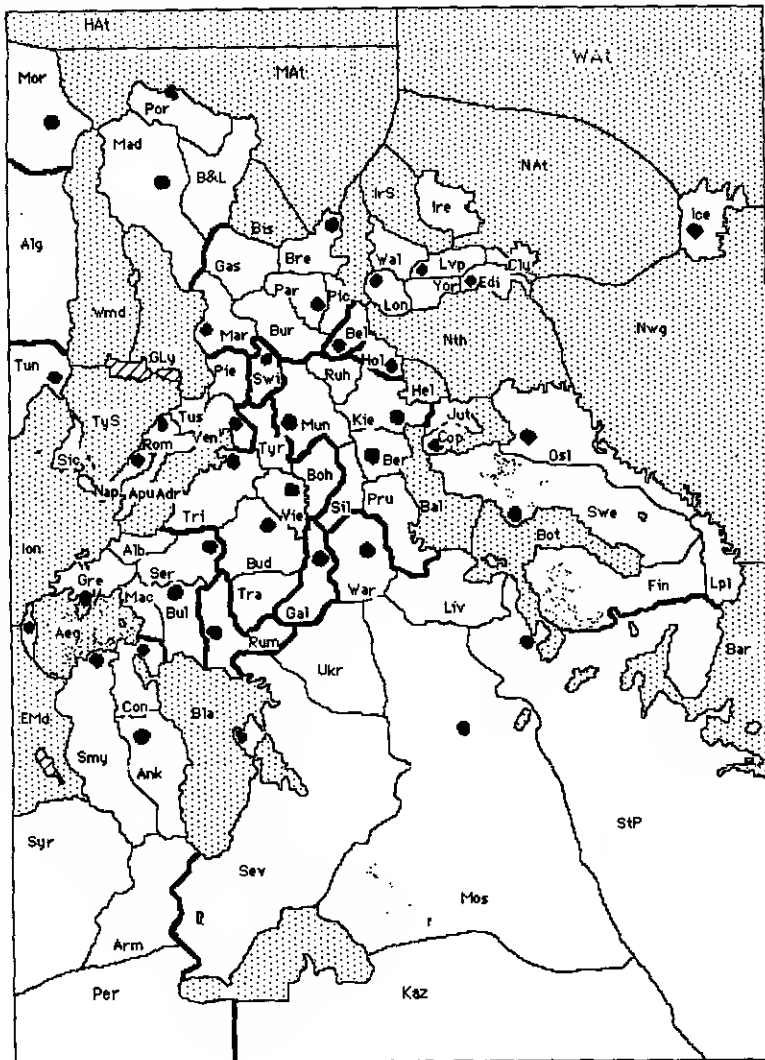

Spain -> Scandiavia: I'll stop attacking you and attack Germany. Just give me all your centres and wait until R/T/I are off the board.

Batyville: That seems to a SMALL price to pay for peace.

Spain -> France: A is gone! Congratulations Pardner! 1 down, 5 to go. Care to make that 4?

Batyville: Which one? France?

Batyville: I am not going to update the map. I will let you do that with colored pencils. It has been too confusing with all of the small centers, and province names in there.
